Welcome to Along
Help each student feel seen and understood

Along is a free digital tool that provides an easy and fun way for K-12 educators to build meaningful relationships with students.

Students can open up about who they are without peer pressure, in a way that is convenient and comfortable, and feel supported in and out of the classroom.

How it works

• An educator records and sends a reflection question. Here’s an example: “What is something or someone in your life you are grateful for and why?” The educator includes their own response to the question, giving the student an opportunity to know them as well.

• After receiving the reflection question, each student responds with a video, audio, or written message. Students cannot see each other’s responses, helping them feel more comfortable opening up.

• The educator reviews and replies to each student’s response, validating what the student shared.

“Building relationships is so important because it tells students I care and am here for you.”
